

GENDER PAY GAP REPORTING 2025

1 INTRODUCTION & REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

The Academy is required to publish its gender pay gap under the Equality Act 2010 (Specific Duties and Public Authorities) Regulations 2017 in line with criteria set by the UK Government.

The six reportable metrics are:

- i. mean gender pay gap (average value)
- ii. median gender pay gap (middle value)
- iii. mean bonus payment gender pay gap
- iv. median bonus payment gender pay gap
- v. proportion of males and females receiving a bonus payment
- vi. proportion of males and females in each pay quartile band

2 WHAT IS THE GENDER PAY GAP

The gender pay gap looks at the difference in the mean and median pay, as an hourly rate, between male and female staff. It is not the same as equal pay. Equal pay comparisons look at the pay difference between male and female staff when performing work of equal value in the same or largely similar roles.

3 SCOPE OF THE REPORT

- The data for this exercise is taken from the Academy payroll covering the snapshot date of 31 March 2024.
- For staff working irregular hours, a twelve-week period preceding the snapshot date is used to identify average working hours.
- The data includes basic pay, London allowance, and other allowances where applicable.
- For the purposes of the calculations, a pay period of one month equates to 30.44 days.

4 RESULTS

The reported results are listed below for all full-pay relevant employees.

A percentage value of 0 indicates no gap, a positive percentage value favours male employees and a negative percentage value favours female employees.

Median bonus payment gender pay gap*	-752%	0%	0%	0%	0%

* Bonus payments continue to be used infrequently, usually where a need exists to reward staff in recognition of one-off accomplishments over and above role requirements. The small number of payments may produce large statistical fluctuations, as is the case this year.

The teaching body consists of industry leading musicians with portfolio careers who demand a high degree of flexibility and part-time working. Flexible working options are commonplace and well received across the institution and continue to be further embraced following the pandemic.

The Academy remains confident that men and women are paid equally for work rated as equivalent within the job evaluation scheme and for work of equal value. The Academy results remain comparable to the UK HEI sector.

The Academy remains committed to investing in its staff and to further addressing the gender pay gap.

7 HOW THE ACADEMY IS ADDRESSING THE GENDER PAY GAP

What we have achieved so far
We continue to use name-blind staff recruitment, to reduce the opportunity for unconscious bias from the recruitment and selection process, and monitor the gender balance of applications against appointments made to help identify potential points of unconscious bias.
We advertise our salaries in the job adverts.
We remain committed to fair and transparent job evaluation, using the Higher Education Role Analysis system. This determines the salary grades of Academy roles through an evidence-based, systematic approach.
We continue to be part of the UCEA network for the national negotiation of the annual cost of living pay award and are committed to progressing associated work on equality.
We offer a range of flexible working options to a greater number of staff, however for safeguarding reasons, teaching activity must be on-site.
We reviewed our enhanced maternity leave provision and encourage staff to return to work with a range of flexible working options, including part-time working, flexible work patterns, working from home and job shares.
We continue to offer a variety of leave options, including carers leave and special leave, to assist with retaining staff who may have family caring responsibilities outside of work, and which continues to disproportionately affect more women than men in the UK.
We continue to promote a healthy work-life balance, with one of the lowest number of hours in the sector for a full-time equivalent working week, helping to meet out our commitment to equality, diversity and family-friendly policies.
We continue to use Equality Impact Assessments to identify and eradicate potential issues in upcoming plans, policies and initiatives.
We closely monitor the gender pay gap via our governance structures and have implemented an integrated Human Resources and Payroll system, enabling greater management information analysis.
We continue to see an increase in the number women being appointed to management, Head of Department, Senior Management and governance roles.
We have embedded a termly pay review process to ensure that fairness and equality are central to our pay and rewards systems, pay requests are linked to the institutional strategy and that gender balance is considered as part of that process.
We have conducted a pay rationalisation exercise, reducing the number of hourly rates for teaching staff across the institution.
We continue to provide Equality, Diversity & Inclusion training to all new and existing members of the Senior Management Team.
We have updated the Recruitment Policy providing further clarity around equality, diversity and inclusion, and in-person training was provided around these updates to all staff involved in recruitment.

The Belonging Committee continues to look at ways to promote female students and performers.
Ensuring there is no pay disparity when offering roles, especially where a male is covering maternity leave.

What we will be doing
We shall continue to appoint all staff within the pay and grading structure and the new simplified hourly rates, linked to it.
We will continue to promote diversity, equity, inclusion and belonging training for all new and existing Academy staff, via collaborations with external organisations and through the online training system.
We will continue to monitor staff and student diversity by gender and all protected characteristics, via the Human Resources team and the Equality, Diversity and Inclusion Committee, taking steps to challenge discrimination, remove barriers to inclusion and promote equality throughout the Academy.
We will manage salaries in line with our new rate structure which we expect will have an impact going forward.
We are currently working with 'Reward Connected' who will be working to externally benchmark pay and benefits.
